1. Introduction

This study discusses the imagery of poetry in the Antologi Sastra Lelaki di Gerbang Kampus written by Gemasastrin students. Poetry itself is a form of literature that expresses the poet’s thoughts and feelings imaginatively and arranged by concentrating all the power of language, surface and deep structure (Waluyo, 1991, p. 25). Poetry is the language of feelings that can combine a deep response in a few words. The presence of a poem is a poet’s statement containing inner experience as a result of the creative process of the art object. Poetry was created in an atmosphere of intense feelings that demands spontaneous speech and a solid soul. In the poem, a person speaks and reveals himself expressively.
Poetry consists of two structures, surface and deep structure. The deep structure of the poem consists of: theme, tone, feeling, and message. The surface structure of the poem consists of: diction, imagery, concrete word, figurative language (figure of speech), diversification (rhyme, rhythm, and metrum), and typographical poetry (Waluyo, 1991, p. 28). One of important surface structure in poetry is imagery. The images are the order of the words that can express sensory experiences, such as sight, hearing, and feeling. It is characterized by the use of concrete and distinctive words (Waluyo, 1991, p. 78).

In the poem, the imagery is used to describe a situation with the aim of informing the readers about a poet’s mind. The importance of imagery in poetry can make the readers more easily understand the meaning of the poem. The images also invite readers of poetry as if it were the events that occur in the poem. In addition, the use of imagery involving the senses come to give the value of its own beauty to literature, especially poetry.

Currently, poetry has been in increasing demand by students and the community at large. One of the evidence is the creation of Antologi Sastra Lelaki di Gerbang Kampus. This anthology is a special creation of Indonesian Education and Literature Department students in Syiah Kuala University. This anthology does not only comprise poetry, but also short stories and drama texts. However, the authors are interested to examine only the imagery on the poem from the anthology. The selected poems were written by different poets. It would be unique to each poet to use the kind of imagery in the poetry.

2. Literature Review

Etymologically, the word poem comes from the Greek poesis which means creation. A poet means a person who creates poetry, while a poem means a piece of writing in which the expression of feelings and ideas is given intensity by particular attention to diction and rhyme (Tarigan in Djojosuroto, 2005, p. 10). The literary art is also known as poetry and poem. In Indonesia, the word is intended to mean the same thing with poetry, where poetry is as a poetic work of art. Poetic words contain special beautiful values. The literary work is called poetic when it evokes feelings, attracts attention, and poses a clear response. Poetical creation can be achieved by various ways, such as visual form: typography, composition temple; with sound; rhyme, assonance, alliteration, simile sound, symbol sense, and orchestration; diction, figurative language, rhetoric, grammar, figure of speech, etc. (Pradopo, 2010, p. 13)

Poetry is formed by the surface structure and deep structure in it so that it becomes a unity form. According to Waluyo (1991, p. 25), poetry is a form of literature that expresses the poet’s thoughts and feelings imaginatively and arranged by concentrating all the power of language to the concentration of the surface and deep structure. The deep structure of the poem consists of: theme, tone, feeling, and message. The surface structure of the poem consists of: diction, imagery, concrete word, figurative language (figure of speech), versification (rhyme, rhythm, and metrum), and typographical poetry. The most important role of surface structure in poetry is imagery.

Altenbernd (in Pradopo, 2010, p. 80) says that imagery or melody is the pictures in mind and the language of a poem. Waluyo (1991, p. 78) also argues imaginary is the order of the words that can express sensory experiences, such as sight, hearing, and feeling. It is characterized by the use of the concrete and distinctive words. The function of imagery is to provide a clear picture to generate a special atmosphere, to create a more vivid picture in mind, to sense, and to attract attention (Pradopo, 2010, p. 79).

The images are associated with human’s senses. There are various imageries in poetry according to the sense of person who wants to be shown by the poet. Pradopo (2010, p. 81) explains that a variety of mind in poetry displayed by the senses of sight, hearing, taste, touch, smell and movement. Furthermore, Waluyo (1991, p. 78) mentions that the images can be divided into three: the visual imagery, images of the hearing (auditory imagery), and taste (tactile imagery). The images can bring an atmosphere that makes the readers as if they are able to see, hear, smell, and taste all that the poets expressed in poetry. Djojosuroto (2005, p. 21) also said that if the reader sees something while reading poetry, then what the poet described is the visual imagery, if the reader is as if hearing while reading poetry, then it described the auditory imagery, if the reader feels a movement shown in the poem, then it depicted kinesthetic imagery; if the reader feels the feelings of the poet, the images depicted are organic imagery.

3. Research Method

This research is classified into qualitative research. The method used in this research is descriptive method by using a structural approach. According to Nawawi (in Siswantoro, 2005, p. 56), structural approach can be interpreted as a descriptive method of troubleshooting procedures to describe or depict the subject or object of research at the present time based on the facts that appear. Meanwhile, Semi (1993, p. 24) also said that the descriptive meaning decomposes the data in the form of words or pictures, not in the form of numbers. Structural approach is an approach that examines the object looked at on the basis of its formation elements and relations between elements in literary texts. This approach is often called as the objective approach, formal approach or analytical approach (Semi, 1993, p. 67).

The data of this research is the poetry in Antologi Sastra Lelaki di Gerbang Kampus. Data collection technique used in this research is documentation technique. According to Sugiyono (2008, p. 329), the document is a record of events that had passed. The documents can be texts, images, or the monumental creation of a person. The writing documents can be diary, history of life, stories, biography, regulations, and policies. The pictures document can be photographs, motion pictures and sketches. Documents in the form of work, for example works of art, which can be in the pictures, sculptures, films, and others. After data collection, the next step is to classify and analyze the data and then make inferences.
